PLANK HOUSE
Dinwiddie, Dinwiddie County, Virginia

21-11-11

Date of erection: Probably eighteenth century

Present condition: Good

Description:

This is a small rectangular building constructed of hewn logs in the form of thick planks, dovetailed at the corners. The roof is a steep gable, and the gable ends are framed and weather-boarded. There is an outside end chimney, built of stone to the top of the fireplace throat, and brick above. In the front is a door at the left and a small horizontal window at the right.
